

Model Making

The model making class meet on Thursdays and we have an enthusiastic group who spend countless hours creating terrific replicas of an assortment of ships, cars, trains, trams and planes, taking great pride as they work toward the finishing of their projects. Members of the group come from various backgrounds and skills, but share a common interest in their commitment to producing such fine examples of their patience and concentration while enjoying each other's company.

A fitting example of the varied backgrounds and skills that have produced such great results, is the model San Francisco Cable Car (pictured).

There are many other fine examples of the work of class members which have been shown at various model making exhibitions during the year, including a display at the School End Of Year Luncheon, where a large number of School members who were in attendance were able to admire the skills of the group. Anyone who enjoys model making is warmly invited to join us to enjoy the camaraderie and to share model making tips with other members.
