Course 44 - Risk, Risk Assessment & Risk Management

11.00am – 12.00pm | 8 High Street | Room 2

'Risk Assessment' is a term often heard in the news. This course will define what 'Risk' means because it is a vague concept and has different meaning to different people. We will consider why we need to perform risk assessment and when to do it. The three terms risk, risk assessment and risk management, are often incorrectly used inter-changeably.

The course will describe how risks are identified, the methodologies used in risk assessment and what can be done to manage risks, different types of risk and an appropriate timing of risk assessment. The course will outline the principles used, the logic of risk assessment, historical development of the concepts and effectiveness of techniques for managing risks. The course will be inter-active, and participants will be encouraged to analyse risk in their own areas of interest.

Narendra Mahant

Course 49 - Mathematics of Finance

11.00am – 12.00pm | 8 High Street

This short course introduces a property of money – that it has a time value; $ 100 is worth more today than $ 100 in a year's time.

We define terminology used in this study then calculate simple and compound interest, then proceed to compounding and discounting, present value and future value, amortisation and sinking funds, ordinary annuities and annuities due, equivalent interest rates, how to evaluate seemingly different financial deals, e.g. lease or buy, hire purchase compared with alternate finance, determination of effective interest rates.

There are no mathematical prerequisites apart from familiarity with elementary algebra. Participants should have a basic scientific calculator, essentially one which has a 'raise to the power' function and available for around $ 30.

This course is subject to room availability, expressions of interest please.

In this course we'll read and talk about poems from all times and cultures, poems from the earliest known works to ones written last week. There will be laughter, possibly tears and many surprises.

As the Welsh poet Dylan Thomas said,

“I could never have dreamt that there were such goings-on in the world between the covers of books, such sandstorms and ice blasts of words,
staggering peace, such enormous laughter,
such and so many blinding bright lights, splashing all over the pages in a million bits and pieces
all of which were words, words, words, and each of which were alive forever in its own delight and glory and oddity and light.”
